The first run at the new time of Monday evenings, and welcome it was too as the day had been hot. Although the turnout was not very good (9 hashers), we were graced by the appearance of Noddy (albeit in flip flops!!) and her cousin Bilge (also in flip flops!!). Of course the start was delayed as usual by the late arrival of Second Hand Dishwasher and Muta. Beware we will start on time next hash!! If you arrive late you will have to find your way out from the RV, but checks will be marked to give you an indication of the way to go.

Before the circle could commence, Noddy was hastily roped in as stand in RA (Semen in South Africa on some pretence of athleticism, and Primitive ferrying visitors to the Airport). Further delays whilst Noddy dealt with various trivia (only to us of course!!) on her mobile. Then after a DOWN DOWN for first home last run (Culture Vulture took this in place of Three Lira who was collecting family at the airport), a brief introductory circle (religious advice deferred to the later circle due to memory lapse), ON-ON was called by the hares.

A short trek along the main road before the first check, a brief trot along another bit of tarmac, and then into the first of the rough stuff after the second check.

At this point we lost the flip floppers and Virgin (a bit of gastroenteritis apparently), and then there were 6. Of these six, two were hares and two who shall be nameless (Secondhand Dishwasher and Muta of course!!) always bringing up the rear with their knitting circle. This left Mark and Diane Blackbeard to do all the running and checking. Having said that, they had so much trouble finding the well laid trail from the checks that the knitting circle caught up for the first couple of checks and had to help them out.

Not content with strolling along at the back, Muta decided that he would create an excuse for his tardiness by treading on a rather large splinter that penetrated his shoe. However, after ministrations aided by Culture Vulture, all was well and Muta proved that he can indeed run by catching up with the front runners and leaving Culture Vulture struggling in his wake. However, thereafter he relapsed to his knitting circle with Secondhand Dishwasher.

Front hare, Ercan was always well up with the two pirates with Culture Vulture sweeping the two knitters at the back and trying to persuade them to break into a walk if not jog. At the ON IN, Ercan and Mark demonstrated a bit of competitive hashing with a sprint for the finish, that was won by Mark (how come Ercan is never first home as he is our best and fastest runner??).

CV opened the circle and gracefully took his DOWN-DOWN as a co-hare and handed over to Noddy who then remembered her religious advice that slagged off blondes. There was a demonstration of how to wear a pashmena by Second Hand Dishwasher, then various DOWN-DOWNs followed with the pinnacle being the naming of Ercan.

CV produced a new Hash Mat, Virgin (stand in Beer Master) provided the Litre jug and Secondhand Dishwasher provided the flour to top the naming. CV explained that the name of Second Home had been discussed ('cos he is never first home), and also Sudoku had been discussed (for his penchant of swimming after a run if we are near water: Su – water, Doku – touched). However, the name Lightfoot was decided as this best describes his running technique. He did manage to finish the entire litre, but didn't manage to beat Three Lira's current record of 34 seconds. In fact he took 82 seconds.

ON-ON-ON for some good BBQ at the Malgalci Restaurant.
